

ABSTRACT

A method and related system for advertising that senses the presence of a consumer proximate to a display of goods, invokes (based on the presence of the consumer), an advertisement selected from a group of previously supplied advertisements, and reporting statistics of the invocation of advertisements.